Senior students help youngsters connect through leadership

CATHOLIC SCHOOLS ENROLMENT
educating students in a world where blogs, tweets, texts and emails are superseding more traditional forms of communication

TWO Peninsula Catholic schools have reported encouraging results from two new programs that extend social and emotional learning and connectedness with the community through reading and leadership.

Students connect in different ways in new programs at St Cecilia’s and St John’s schools.
Senior students at St Cecilia’s Catholic School at Balgowlah are extending the traditional peer support they give to younger students to focus on the issue of cyber awareness.
